

The first half was a generally slow, conservative one. Both teams tried to establish the running game; the Browns were plagued by penalties and an untimely turnover and were unable to score. They were, however, able to stop the Colts from scoring.

